You are walking along one day on the way to your much loved and favorite school, and then all of a sudden you start falling through ground that had only moments ago been completely solid. What happens?

The Earth inverts and the entire human population is trapped inside, stuck in place by centrifugal force.

The group that claims responsibility takes over the world and takes the lead in bringing about peace, prosperity and happiness for everyone.

An ancient species of subterraneans has finally reached the surface after millennials of digging through the Earths crust where they then proceeded to be burnt to a crisp by the sun that had caused them to go underground originally. Rip

You feel kinda sad that the subterranean didn't get to massacre all the people aboveground cause they kinda suck. You proceed to:

Go down into the earth to try and find their civilization, but only end up trapping urself underground while attempting to reach the sacred city.

That is for about .1% of the population, while the rest have to struggle to survive in an anarchistic society. You are oddly pleased by this turn of events, and grow up to change the world, only to be assassinated the day before it was about to be implemented, bringing chaos to the world once again, same old same old.

You're glad the wait is over and you can finally leave the Earth, but little do you know you were just unconscious to your great disappointment, and you are now slowly suffocating to death as a result of being under the surface. You proceed to:

Decide that your not going to do anything to save yourself cause it would take too much effort, when all of a sudden

A Stranger Approaches, who saves your life which you now hate him for, and tells you that he is on a mission to save the world. You don't believe him, and tell him to keep his roleplaying games to himself.

You proceed to Give in and start roleplaying with him, you even go and Cosplay with him at a major event, where you are teleported to a special anime reality where the main character of the story challenges you to a duel, but you say that your the main character, and then you challenge him to a duel, and he starts to say his backstory so you decapitate him for monologuing for too long.

You complete the adventure with your cosplaying sidekick because you proved yourself to be the main character, and then you are teleported back to the real world where you are bullied repeatedly for being a role-player and no one cares that you beat the game. Lol rekt Scrub.

Attempt to rescue yourself in a futile effort at survival, but in reality you only dig yourself further into the ground, where eventually

You actually die. For realsies this time. Gg no re. Cya later scrubadubdub.

You begin the cycle of the guy saving you and then you reburying yourself till eventually the guy just leaves you to die, and you stay their for a little while till you get bored of it when you get out of the hole and win a lottery that allows you to invest human race isn't of much importance, so you just sit back and enjoy the chaos with a nice Capri Sun while:

To you, the survival of the

An alien force invades

The alien race that caused the earth to invert invaded and set up their base in Puerto Rico, who couldn't do much after they got rest by the hurricane. The U.S. government evacuates everyone they can and then nuke the country, marking the start of WWIII as every other country is jealous of the U.S. for getting to use a nuke and decides to launch their nukes at random countries as well, which thankfully wiped out the entire human race except for you, which was kinda boring so you went searching for survivors and proceeded to die from radiation poisoning.

You die.

Rebury yourself